The DRAFT concept is that the large committee cannot specifically address the depth required by any one topic in warned public meetings. By assigning an individual to each category, issues or topics can be discussed informally with the specific townspeople or interested party, with the requirement of a report-out at the next monthly meeting. The individual can be assisted by another member of the committee or community to create an ad-hoc group that will collect data required by the committee to affect its work.

The Give

The Ad-hoc team can work to delve as deep as they want into a topic using their individual expertise and interest to develop the issue, frame the question, make the proposal. In accordance with public meeting rules they are not a sub-committee and do not form a quorum and can conduct conversation as needed to develop details.

The Take

The Ad-hoc team cannot issue decisions on behalf of the committee and must report back with the details of their work at the Monthly meetings. All collected data and facts will be incorporated with the Monthly meeting minutes at which they are discussed, and all decisions are duly warned and debated, and acted on by the entire committee in the proper public forum.

Motion: Motion was made to accept Frank's idea of the structure which would be a living document.
